

Massage

Massage is an excellent physical treatment technique that utilizes the arms, hands and elbows to manipulate the connective tissues and muscles in the body. This technique is frequently used to help improve blood circulation, decrease muscle tension and decrease pain. There are a variety of different kinds of therapeutic massage. For example, some of the best known techniques include: petrissage, effleurage and trigger point massage.